

ROBERT PATTINSON IS DECLARED THE MOST HANDSOME MAN IN THE WORLD

Science says so and we couldn't agree more.

Detractors, do something! Robert Pattinson is the most handsome man in the world, science says. It turns out that the celebrity plastic surgeon, Dr. Julian De Silva, gave Pattinson this title after analyzing the physical proportions of his face, and comparing them with seven other men in the industry.

One would think that no one can beat Brad Pitt, but Robert won the genetic lottery after comparisons the doctor made with Pitt, Bradley Cooper, George Clooney, David Beckham and Henry Cavill. The study was done with "the latest computerized mapping techniques," the surgeon said in a post he shared on Instagram.

"Robert Pattinson was the clear winner when all the elements of his face were measured for physical perfection," said De Silva. "It was discovered that Pattinson had an accuracy of 92.15% in the Greek golden ratio of Phi beauty, which measures physical perfection," he wrote. Henry Cavill was in second place with 91.08%, followed by Bradley Cooper with the same percentage, while Brad Pitt was in fourth place 90.51%.

David Beckham was in seventh place, but he has in his favor that his jaw is the most "chiseled," describes the doctor. He also explains that the golden ratio can be applied to every work of Leonardo Da Vinci, since he used it to achieve perfection, for example, in the Vitruvian Man. This mathematical equation was created by the Greeks in an attempt to measure beauty. In addition, these measures are still used for evaluation before cosmetic surgery.

With these parameters applied, Robert Pattinson is declared the most handsome man in the world. We have no doubt since Dior Homme chose him as ambassador, but especially when we saw him dancing in the new campaign of "I'm Your Man" for Dior Parfums. May you be eternal, Rob.
