The apple under the apple: Women start to look like their mums at the age of 33

March 15, 2019

Women begin to resemble their mothers at the age of 33, just one year before men start behaving like their fathers, according to a new survey. Motherhood is the one that causes changes in a woman's personality, followed by natural signs of aging.

The results of the survey

More than half of the women interviewed admitted that they stopped rebelling against their moms as soon as they reached the age of 30 and started behaving like those. The men also revealed that they started to look like their dads at the age of 34 - at the same age as Prince Harry, whose father is 70 years old.

Women reported the classic signs that they began to behave like their mothers, like watching the same TV shows, having the same hobbies and using the same expressions.

The men stated that they started acting like their fathers after they became fathers themselves. Others said they began to show signs of middle age, such as balding and weight gain, but also the fact that lights are turned off in empty rooms, are all indicators of being turned into their fathers. They also admitted that they have adopted the same political views as those.

The plastic surgeon Dr. Julian De Silva, who led the survey, said: "We all look at our parents at some point in our lives and that is something we have to celebrate. They are the most wonderful people in the world! "
